

Addenda and Errata

FALL 2022

KEY

This document is a record of the changes made to the Fall Calendar 2022 after it was originally published.

The following are the types of changes noted in this document:

- Items marked as addenda (*) were approved after the Calendar was published.
- Items marked as errata () are corrections to errors or omissions that were approved prior to the original publication of the Calendar.
- Items that are underlined are additions or edits to previously published curricula.
- Items that are ~~struck through~~ are deletions from previously published curricula.

PUBL 1900 (1 CREDITS) (0:4:0)*

Modern Digital Publishing

In this micro-course students learn both the creative and technical aspects of digital publishing. They begin by exploring what a digital publication is and then develop the knowledge and skills to make one of their own using type, photos, video, and sound. Students create a multimedia digital publication for their final project.

This course is open to anyone interested in discovering the digital publishing industry.

Previous experience with Adobe InDesign or any page layout application as well as basic familiarity with HTML and Cascading Style Sheets (CSS) is recommended but not required. Graded S/U.